

There are only about 40 birds left in the world, can you count how many there are on this page?

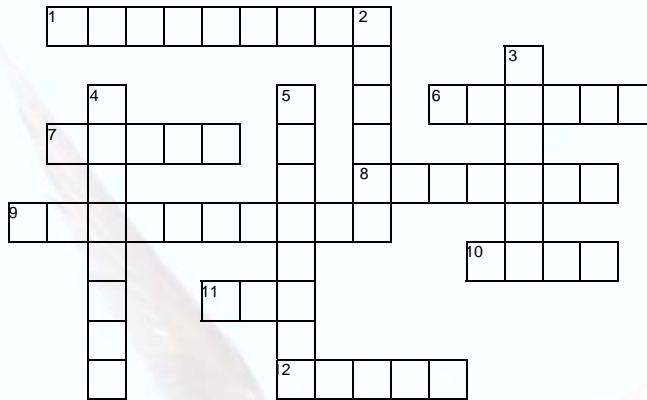

Where can you see NZ fairy terns? In the estuaries of the breeding sites and keep an eye out for them diving into the water fishing for food.

They have black caps, yellow beaks & orange legs.

Bands are put on their legs just before they start flying so we can tell each bird apart.

Volunteers help DOC to look after the fairy terns.

New Zealand Fairy Tern Tara-iti

Across:

1. You can look for fairy terns in the ...
6. What colour legs do they have?
7. Eggs are laid ... the shells and sand
8. What is their Maori name?
9. ... help DOC to look after them
10. The chicks love to eat?
11. One or ... eggs are laid in the nest
12. How do we tell who is who?

Down:

2. These animals kill fairy terns
3. Fairy terns nest at this site
4. They are the ... terns to breed in NZ & all other terns are bigger
5. If you get too close the adults will ... you!

Bad weather, people and animals like cats, dogs, stoats, hedgehogs and rats can all hurt them.

They lay one or two eggs in the nest in summer among the shell and sand.

If you get too close to the nest the parents will fly up and try to dive-bomb you and they get up too often the eggs could die!

Nationally Critically
Endangered
New Zealand Fairy Tern
35-40 Individuals Remaining
Nest at Mangawhai, Waipu, Pakiri &
Papakanui

For further information contact
DOC Whangarei Area Office on

09 470 3304 or Warkworth Area
Office on 09 425 7812

